Customize appearance

Did Eminem Threaten The President? The Secret Service Is Looking Into It

In 'We As Americans,' Eminem raps line, 'I don't rap for dead presidents/ I'd rather see the president dead.'

By archive-Joseph-Patel

By archive-Joseph-Patel

December 8, 2003 / 3:45 PM

Eminem could find himself the subject of a Secret Service investigation if a lyric from one of his songs is construed to be a threat against President George W. Bush.

In his song "We As Americans," Eminem rhymes, "F--- money/ I don't rap for dead presidents/ I'd rather see the president dead/ It's never been said, but I set precedents."

"We As Americans" is one of the songs leaked online last week that Eminem's spokespeople said were unfinished tracks not intended for public release (see [article id="1480894"]"Eminem's Benzino Dis Turns Up In The Lab"[/article]). His reps could not confirm when the track in question was recorded. However, elsewhere in the song, Eminem references the release of 50 Cent's Get Rich or Die Tryin', which occurred in the last year.

A person in the Secret Service Office of Public Affairs confirmed that they were aware of the song and were looking into the matter. John Gill, the official spokesperson for the Secret Service, was not immediately available for further comment.

Even though Eminem doesn't mention Bush or the president of the United States specifically, it is standard procedure for the Secret Service to investigate anything that might be considered a threat against the president.